

PETER FELS RECOGNIZED AS CHAMPION OF JUSTICE
Clark County Bar Association News - January 2009

Local attorney, Peter Fels, was recognized at the Legal Aid Day event for his work with the Northwest Justice Project and the Clark County Volunteer Lawyers Program. Peter has been a long time supporter of legal aid. He has been a mentor to the staff attorneys at Northwest Justice Project, and has volunteered for advice clinics and direct representation of clients at the Volunteer Lawyers Program.

State Supreme Court Justice Susan Owens presented Peter with the Champion of Justice Award at the Legal Aid Day event. Legal Aid Day occurs every other year to highlight the achievements of legal aid programs throughout the State of Washington and to bring legal aid to the attention of the public and the legislature.

Peter is a graduate of the University of Oregon Law School and has been practicing law in Washington since 1994. He practices by himself and represents clients in employment matters, estate planning, probate, civil rights, residential real estate, landlord-tenant and miscellaneous consumer issues.

Peter states on his website, "I became a lawyer because I wanted to help people, and in my practice I emphasize serving individuals. I enjoy being with my family, working the family flower and vegetable gardens, and also doing volunteer work in the community."

The Northwest Justice Project and the Clark County Volunteer Lawyers Program truly appreciate the work of Peter Fels in the effort to make the law accessible to all.
